

URGES MUNICIPAL WASTE COLLECTION

Would Result in Large Saving For District, Declares Superintendent Paxton.

In the belief that the municipal collection of city waste would result in a large saving to the District, J. W. Paxton, superintendent of the street cleaning department, in his annual report, submitted to the Commission, today, again recommends that an appropriation of $10,000 be obtained to investigate and report on the plan, including the preparation of specifications and plans for the establishment of disposal plants. At present the work of the collection and disposal of garbage, ashes, refuse, and dead animals is done by contractors, which expire June 30, 1915.

"It is estimated," says Superintendent Paxton, "that the contractors for the disposal of city waste have invested in collecting equipment and disposal plants several hundred thousand dollars, which they have figured on recovering from the amounts received from the District for the services rendered during the five-year term of their contracts."

"In other words," the District is probably paying the contractors, in addition to the cost of the work and the contractors' profit, the cost of complete disposal plants and collection equipment every five years, whereas the disposal plants, if owned by the District, would probably have a life of forty or fifty years. It is believed that the District should at least own the disposal plants, which could be operated by the District, and the collection of city waste could be let to contractors, or the whole service could be let on contract on the basis of the contractors leasing the disposal plants from the District."

For the last two years the Commission has included in their estimates the appropriation recommended by Superintendent Paxton, but it has not been favorably acted on by Congress. The plan for the municipal collection of city waste is approved by the clean city committee. The streets in the central part of the city, which are cleaned daily by the Street Cleaning Department, cover an area of approximately 2,500,000 square yards. The work is done by 215 men.

Four-Year-Old Boss Of Marshall Apartment

A four-year-old boy, Thomas Marshall, of Bentley Springs, W. Va., is boss of Vice President Marshall's apartments at the Shoreham Hotel today. The youngster, who is named for the Vice President, was brought to Washington by Mrs. Marshall, the Vice President's secretary, last night for a second visit.

Mr. Marshall, the little fellow visited the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, and had the distinction of sitting on the knee of the presiding officer of the Senate during the deliberations over the tariff bill. Mrs. Marshall, who has no children of her own, grew homesick for the boy and now has gained permission of his parents for him to make her a long visit here.

There was a parental ail about the Vice President as he presided over the Senate's deliberations today.

Lecture on Ownership Of Street Railways

Congressman Robert Crosser of Ohio, who was Tom Johnson's right hand man during the nine-year fight for public ownership of the Cleveland street car system, will lecture tonight on "Why the People Should Own the Street Car System" before the Study Club in Economics at Ingram Memorial Church, Tenth and Massachusetts avenue north, east.

Mr. Crosser does not consider three-cent fares, which was the result of Cleveland's fight, the solution of the street car question. The equitable solution to use his own words is the transfer of the street car system from private ownership for private profit to public ownership for the public good.

Mrs. Sewall's Divorce Surprise to Friends

Washington society was surprised today to hear that Mrs. Virginia Sims Evans Sewall, daughter of the late Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, had obtained a divorce at Ellsworth, Me., from Harold I. Sewall, as friends here had no intimation that the marriage was not a happy one. Mrs. Sewall has been prominent for years in Washington society. Her mother, Mrs. Charlotte T. Evans, and her sister, Mrs. Marshall, wife of Capt. C. C. Marsh, U. S. N., and her brother, Lieut. Frank Evans, U. S. N., maintain their homes in the capital, although all are out of the city at present.

Mr. Sewall spent a part of his time in Porto Rico, where he has large sugar interests. He maintained his legal residence in Boston, but, with his wife, he spent his winters in Washington, and was well known in club circles. Mrs. Sewall has been at her summer home in Bar Harbor for a sufficient length of time to establish a legal residence in Maine. Her mother has been with her for some time. The charges in the case were cruel and abusive treatment, personal violence at the summer home in Bar Harbor in August, 1909, being alleged. The alimony and custody of a child were agreed upon by counsel.

Runaway Colored Girl Tells Startling Tale

A man named Roger Jones, who has moved to Washington since, was driving along a country road in Virginia one day about two years ago when he found a little colored girl about six years old, half-clothed and almost wholly starved.

He took her into the buggy and drove to her mother's cabin. The mother of the child admitted that she didn't have enough food for the children, and asked Jones to take the child until she could support her.

Jones moved to Washington shortly afterward and brought along the girl. She learned to cook and wash dishes and care for the Jones' baby, but in all that time, it didn't occur to the Jones to send her to school.

A night or two ago the "help" ran away. A policeman found her at Severn and sent her to school. The girl told a wonderful story of being chased out of the house with a revolver, but in court today she denied that she ever did any such thing. Jones was censured by the court for failing to send the girl to school. The aid of several probation officers, Judge Lattimer learned the child's story, and had her paroled in Jones' keeping for thirty-eight days, so the court can determine whether she'll be better off in Washington or in Virginia.

WOMAN'S OWNER OF BIG RAILROAD

Mrs. J. P. Williams Is the Active Manager of $10,000,000 Estate of Husband.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—Through the death of her husband, J. P. Williams, land owner, capitalist, and railroad magnate, Mrs. Cora B. Williams becomes one of the richest women in the South. Williams died intestate according to letters of administration filed. His widow is named as the only heir-at-law. She, therefore, comes into entire control of an estate estimated at $10,000,000.

Mrs. Williams thus becomes one of the largest individual heiresses in the United States. She controls a quarter of a million acres of farming, timber, and oil over land in Georgia and Florida. She is probably the only woman in the world who owns absolutely in her own right a 200-mile interstate railroad, with its trains, stations, shops, terminals, docks, and a steamship line.

Williams earned her vast riches by the sale of the largest timber and turpentine camps in the South. He took a job of chipping timber in a turpentine camp at 18 a day. He realized the vast resources of the timber lands of the South, and by bit began to purchase holdings of that kind. Gradually he broadened his field, erecting mills and distilleries until he came to be known as one of the biggest timber and turpentine operators in the South. He amassed a fortune of $400,000 by this means before he entered the railroad business.

As Mrs. Williams now owns all of the $10,000,000 of bonds and 90 per cent of the stock of the Georgia, Florida, and Alabama railroad it is assumed that all the vacated caused by the death of her husband. She has able and experienced traffic and operating lieutenants, who are thoroughly loyal to her interests. During the last few years of his life Williams was an invalid. In that time his wife was his closest counselor and virtually manager of his extensive interests. She will probably carry out his policies in the management of the
